

Building resilience through connections

Dear Friend,

Even though we may hopefully soon be looking at the pandemic in the rear-view mirror, James Bay Community Project needs you now more than ever.

In the early days of the pandemic, we temporarily closed the Community Closet Thrift Store, our social enterprise located in James Bay Square. Though it has now re-opened, it operates at reduced hours as we continue to safeguard our community and adhere to the health protocols.

The loss of revenue from this closure will be felt by the Project for some time.

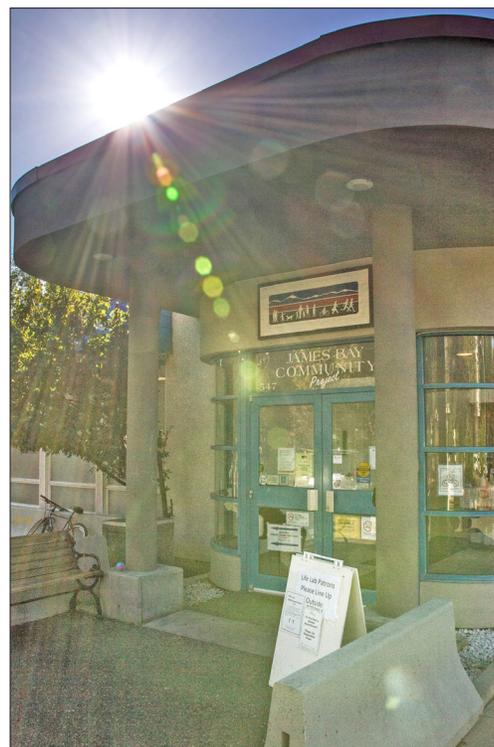

However, with your support, the Project is optimistic about continuing to offer online programming and safely distanced in-person services for children, families and seniors.

Resilience has been instrumental in weathering this pandemic.

The importance of mental health and wellness, meaningful connections with loved ones and being able to meet one's basic needs have come to the forefront as essential necessities for everyone.

As a social service agency that strives to build resilience through connections, your gift will make a positive impact in your community.

(Please turn over)

Your gift means we can maintain programming for families with young children, parent education and sing-along programs for young children.

Your gift will help us provide a hot and delicious meal to those struggling to feed their families through our take-away dinner program. Though the interaction is physically distanced and brief, it has become a much-needed way for people to connect with each other throughout the pandemic.

Your gift will also help us support seniors with their routine needs such as grocery shopping and transportation to medical appointments as well as alleviate the loneliness of isolation during the pandemic with a friendly phone call or visit from one of our fantastic volunteers.

Last but not least, your gift means that we as a community are going to be okay because we have been looking out for each other.

Please give generously so that more people in our community can build up their resilience as we face the ongoing challenges of this pandemic.

Thank you for supporting the Project and the children, families and seniors to whom we provide our services.

Sincerely,
